Columbian Fights Hog Cholera.

Dr. D. F. Luckey of Columbia, state veterinarian, presented arguments before the house appropriation committee at Jefferson City last week for an additional fund to be used in making the control of hog cholera statewide during the next two years. Doctor Luckey outlined the plan that last season resulted in the control of 251 outbreaks. The cost to the state was $200 for each county. If the work continues the school board of each district is to act as a central organization for detecting and reporting outbreaks.
